Such the Bellet at the Navy Department Concerning Admiral Stanton and Officers and Crew of the Kearsarge. Washington, Feb 10-At the navy department it is estimated that the mail steamer City of Para reached Roncador reef at 6 o'clock this morning from Colon, and that the rescue of Admiral Stanton and the officers and men of the Kearsarge was accomplished early this afternoon. It is believed that the Para will be back in Colon with the survivors tomorrow by noon, but naval officers say no alarm need be folt if nothing is heard of the vessel at this end until Monday or perhaps Tuesday morning.

LEFT BECAUSE OF ANARCHISM Steamship Plata Coming with 600 Sicihans on Board to America. NEW YORK, Feb 10-It was reported on Ellis island today that the steamship Plata is expected to arrive here next week with 600 Sicilians on board who were obliged to leave the island on account of the recent anarchistic ontbreaks there.

It is said that owing to the political dis turbances and the state of siege that pre-vails in Sicily, many of the inhabitants are on the verge of starvation, and those who can are leaving the country.

The Ellis island authorities will closely examine the Sicilians when they arrive here.

> Row Arose Over a Cow That Had Strayed from Home.

> GREAT BARRINGTON, Feb 10-Sheffield, five miles south of this town, was the scene of a most brutal and probably fatal assault yesterday, when Milo Knicker-bocker, his son Charles A., his wife and a hired man named Norton unmercifully eat Frederick W. Decker, against whom hey had cherished a grudge for some time Decker and Knickerbocker occupy ad-oining farms under Mt Everett, and for years there has been ill feeling between he families. Friday afternoon when Decker returned rom a short trip his wife told him his ows were in Knickerbocker's dooryard. Decker ate his supper and then went to find the cows.

In his neighbor's yard he met Thomas

Norton, a hired man, and after a few words the two clinched and began a rough and tumble fight, Old man Knickerbocker was not long in coming out of the house and taking a hand, and in a short time Decker had him down and was choking him.

While this was going on Charles A. Knickerbooker came out of the barn, armed with a sharp pitchfork. With this he made a savage attack on Decker, cutting and bruising him.

Meanwhile Mrs Knickerbocker and Nor ton, armed with clubs, had entered the fray, and Decker was getting decidedly the worst of it. He managed to get to his home, and Dr Synder was called.

Decker's head was a mass of bruised flesh, his back was battered, and all last night he was delirious.

There is little hope of his recovery. The Knickerbockers were arraigned this afternoon before Judge Sanford. Charles was held in $1000 for assault with intent to kill and Milo in $200 for ssault. Mrs Knickerbocker and Norton will be arraigned Monday. Charles Knickerbocker was arrested on his father's complaint some months ago or assault. Late reports from Decker indicate that

The devotees of the game of billiards are true sportsmen. They love to applaud a good shot on the green with the same zeal with which they cry "corker" when one of their number brings down a woodcock with each barrel in the field.

They gathered early last night. Eight o'clock saw the hall quite full. The players were a trifle tardy, but no impatience was displayed. Near the entrance stood a photographer with his camera trained on he scene. He was waiting for the game to begin to take a flashlight picture. A para graph as to what happened when he pulled the trigger will be found by those who

SLOSSON AT THE BALK LINE NURSE

It was 20 minutes past the hour when ves came down the aisle with a green bag full of cues. Of course, he was applauded. Celebrities always are when they put in an appearance with the intention of giving collateral for the money passed in at the ticket office.
Close behind was Slosson, with that peculiar pallor of countenance deepened, if possible, to a deathlier white. Both were in full evening dress, and each bowed in acknowledgment of the applause. were most impressive.

returned like a double hitch. Their speed was almost identical, and when they stopped within three inches of the upper rail it was thought that the trick would have to be tried over again.

Reteree Murphy was called upon to decide the nearer ball to the cushton. His tine eye told him that the sphere rolled by Ives held that position, and the young Napoleon of the game led off. He missed by two inches.

Slosson, who had anything but a tempting layout before him, contributed one button, taking h s seist in an endeavor to collect the scattered forces.

Ives as full of jauntiness as an undersized military officer rolled up a bunch of 11 on open table work. His face was an evening edition of a morning glory. All the petals of his old-time smile were drawn tightly to a point which ended with his lips. Ives was out for blood and the game. He played with determination, and bets were quietly made that he would win.

This became more apparent when Slosson slipped up after another contribution of a single button.

The spheres were well bunched when Ives began, but O, my, how they did spread out! The, "pigs in clover" toy couldn't begin to show such contrariness. By all around the table work two or three times during his stay with them, Ives managed to whip them into divers corners, where he nursed out 55, bringing the first rousing appliance of the evening.

This all occurred at the beginning of the third inning, and when Slosson touched up the spheres for 31, the spectators began to hope for a lively, quickly finished game.
But they were disappointed. Both men lansed right away. The balls sulked, good averages were endangered, spectators wondered.

averages were endangered, spectators wondered.

Nothing was Ives' report for the fourth.
Slosson wasn't far removed. He got one.
Then the lifth opened. Ives made one shot, the balls rolling into a problem for the next. All was attention to see how he would make it.

It was a cushion masse. With his stick at a tower of Pisa slaat he fiddled away at the cue ball, and just as he let-go the plotographer turned loose his battery for a flash light view. There was a muffled report and a vivid lightning flash. It took everybody by surprise. Visions of bomb throwers were rife.

Ives ducked under the table, John Murphy threw up his arm, as it some one had phy threw up his arm, as it some one had shied a pillow at him, and all of the men on the platform showed a disposition to cut and run.

Ives pulled back the breath he had lost and began to smile. "Gee," he said, glancing at Slosson, "I thought some one had shot at me."

ing at Slosson, "I thought some one had shot at me."

The little incident caused a good deal of merriment, and the cloud of smoke a tremendous amount of coughing.

Ives resumed play, stopping at the fifth batton. The figures to the eighth inning for both came small, all single ones, one of Slosson's not even being single.

Ives began the eighth with a run of 34. This was a tittle life, but not much. The game had been slow. Taking a fairly good leave, caused by Ives committing a foul in moving the object ball to which his sphere was froze, while attempting a masse, he nursed them in and out of the lower bulklines for 61. Three or four-times while completing this run he was compelled to whip the balls in by open work.

One of his drives for position was a three-cushion wanderer all aglow with the beauteous tints of the rainbow.

Was he applauded? You should have been there. After this the balls began to take the source of the source of the source of the source of the rainbow.

haped duck's egg, and Slosson turned in played a coal-heaver's shot in the So did Slesson. Neither of them counted.

It was getting late and a little wearisome, but the 12th opened with more promise. I ves coaxed the balls in conference and nudged them about, played barn tick against the cushions with one of them in the nurse, made them do the minuet and up and down the center till marker Kendricks announced "51 for the white" marker Kendricks announced "51 for the white."

Slosson had them well under way for a good run, having them together and under perfect control at the foot of the table when he miscued, his stick flying away from the polished ivory as if it had been soaped. He made seven.

Small numbers held sway again till the 15th inning, when Ives put up a string of 62, earning over two-thirds of all the shots he made. An extremely simple draw gave Slosson a chance, which he improved by 38, Ives fell to three in the next inning, and Slosson made 39. Then Ives made one and Slosson 92.

Then came eggs, followed by two for Ives and another egg for Slosson. The spectators began to grow uneasy. Some of them left to catch out-of-town trains. It was 11 o'clock when the 21st inning was onened by Ives with a cypher. Slosson made seven and followed in the next inning, after Ives' miss, with 60. The score was now. Slosson 38, Ives 247.

The game looked as if Sunday would see the finish. In the 23d Ives missed again, the had enough of eggs on hand to batch out nearly adozen ducks. Slosson followed with 33, and when Ives stepped to the table a voice admonished him to take a brace.

He did. The inning was the 24th, and it table a voice admonished him to take a brace.

He did. The inning was the 24th, and it was productive of the best billiards of the night. The young Napoleon drew the spheres to the desired territory, and kept them moving till he passed the century mark. The applause was abundant. On he kept until his run in his game with Shaefer was beaten. That was 144.

Greetings were given when this was done, and when he stopped at 146 the old building shock. Sixteen was the largest figure for the next two innings that going to the "Student's" score.

In the 27th Ives increased his string by figure for the next two innings that going to the "Student's" score.

In the 27th Ives increased his string by the addition of 48, giving way to Schaefer on an unfruitful masse. Ives was getting so dangerously near that it behoved Slosson to hustle. He worked the balls carefully about till they began to roll his way, when he used them tenderly, just as if they had been vaccinated and it had "took." By so doing they were not disposed to clove, so when they did get in their tantrums he was better off by an addition of 115 to his score.

The next inning was the last. It was the 28th. Ives put up 25, and Slosson having of to go went to work with a vim. He never stopped till the game was finished, and he was announced the winner of the Boston tournament. The score:

Slosson—1, 1, 31, 1, 8, 0, 6, 61, 0, 41, 0, 7, 5, 3, Slosson—1, 1, 31, 1, 8, 0, 6, 61, 0, 41, 0, 7, 5, 3, 38, 30, 0, 29, 0, 0, 7, 00, 33, 1, 16, 6, 115, 91—600.

Slosson and Schaefer opened the tournament last Wednesday night to a gathering that filled the hall completely. The game began shortly after 8 o'clock, and dragged on slowly through 23 innings. Schaefer played in the severest kind of luck, being unable to keep the balls in nursing position, and falling down on shots that ordinarily would be easy. Slosson played the game with hig usual studious care, and went through it with a first rate average. The score:

Slosson—0.0.4.77.0.92.1.0.3.0.4.51.19.80. Slosson-0, 0, 4, 77, 0, 92, 1, 0, 3, 0, 4, 51, 19, 80, 24, 60, 65, 5, 14, 11, 50, 38, 2-600. Highest runs

Ives and Schaefer came together to decide the second game of the series. It was played Friday night, and was in one respect, at least, the best game at balk line billiards, anchor shot barred, ever played in this country. Schaefer was in prime condition, the mood for playing had full possession of him, and the balls rolled as if they possessed a magnetic attraction for each other. The exquisitely delicate stroke of the wizard was seen at its best in the ninth and 10th innings of the game, when he made runs of 125 and 271, the latter figure making a new record.

Ives, who began the game in anything but championship form, recovered his stroke after the wizard's phenomenal runs, recording a score of 144 in the 12th inning. The two big runs of Schaefer seemed to have disheartened him a bit, but he pulled out of the game with an average of a fraction over 24, displaying remarkable powers of calculation in two, three and four cushion gathering drives. His run of 144 was made by the carefullest kind of play. The score:

PROMISED AT THE THEATERS.

Seabrooke to Produce "Tabasco" at the Museum-"The Rising Generation" Coming to the Park-Patti Arrives. Bostonians are to have the pleasure of eaing the first production on the professional stage of "Tabasco," the merry comic opera which was given with such success by the cadets a couple of weeks since. The roports that Mr E. E. Rice was to have the work were evidently without foundation, for yesterday Mr Thomas Q. Seabrooke purchased the rights for production of the opera and will give it an elabo rate production at the Boston museum or April 9. It is hoped, and with good reason expected, that the opera will hold the stage of the museum during a long run. Mr Seabrooke will impersonate the role of the king with a fondness for things exof the king with a fondness for things excessively hot, and it is promised that his supporting company will be of unusual exceilence. The character of the king is one which seems particularly well suited to Mr Seabrooke's unique methods of funnaking, and will no doubt enable him to duplicate if not add to the brilliant triumplas which he has won during the last three years in the "isle of Champagne,"

The production here will be awaited with particular interest, as both the librettist, Mr R. A. Barnet, and the composer, Mr G. W. Chadwick, are Bostonians. Mr Barnet's friends are unanimous in the belief that "Tabasco" will prove even a greater success than his "1492," which is still playing to the capacity of a New York theater.

William Barry Coming to the Park. Manager W. L. Malley came to Boston yesterday and signed a contract with Manager Stetson for an elaborate production of William Barry's latest comedy success, "The Rising Generation" at the Park theater on Feb 26. It is intended to put the play on for an extended run, and with that end in view the production will be embellished with elaborate scenic effects, and the present company materially enlarged.

"The Rising Generation" was presented at another Boston theater earlier in the season, immediately after the play had season, immediately after the play had been written, but it is reported to bear slight resemblance in its present form to what it was at that time, so many and so notable have been the improvements. As the play made a decidedly favorable impression in its original form, a prosporous run seems assured for it at the Park.

"The Rising Generation" has met with great success in New York and other cities, and Mr Barry's personal triumph is said to even excel the splendid honors which he won in "McKenna's Hirstation." The company is one of the strongest which has ever supported Mr Barry, and includes Miss Annie Mack Berlein, Miss Lydia Barry, Miss Emmie Fawcett, Mr James H. Manning, Mr Joseph Davis, Richard Sullivan, Mr Harry Fenwick and Mr Charles P. Bates. Mr Harry Fenwick and Mr Charles P. Bates.

FEW CHANGES.

Senate Will Do Little With Wilson Bill.

Coal, Iron Ore and Sugar May be Put on Dutiable List.

Republicans Do Not Dare to Filibuster.

Hill's Friends Feel Sure of Beating Peckham.

Boston's Collector Will Probably be Named Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb 10-The people who so confidently predicted some time ago that the senate would so change the tariff hill that Mr Wilson would not be able to recognize his handiwork, are now by no neans sure of it. It is not believed that the changes will e radical. Coal, iron ore and sugar, according to present information, will be taxed, and outside of those articles the changes in schedules will not be startling.

Wool will remain on the free list and there will be made a number of more or less important changes in the woolen manufactures schedules, the general result being reduction. Lumber and salt, now on the free list. will be allowed to stay there.

In some cases wherein the opinion of the senate the duties in the Wilson bill are proective they will be reduced in the hope of tending to raise revenue. That is the main object of the finance committee to make the bill strictly a reve ue measure.

While the republicans have indulged in some talk about demanding "full and free debate." which in the senate is only another name for filibustering, the impression grows that the republican senators will see the political wisdom of not offering any serious obstruction. A great many letters are being received by republican senators urging them to filiouster against the bill and to delay its passage as long as possible, if they cannot lefeat it. One argument presented in favor of this course is that the longer the delay and un-certainty the more keenly will be felt the inconvenience and injury to business. On the other hand, contention is made that though this be so, there might be a re action injurious to the republicans by the responsibility being put upon them for the protracted uncertainity, which might be even more disastrous to some business interests than any injuries which the law it self might inflict-at least, if not more disastrous, more irritating.

The leaders are considering this matter calmly and judicially, and will follow that course which seems most apt to emphasize and impress on the public an appreciation of the consequences of democratic legislawhatever course they follow, they have no idea of defeating the bill, and the chances are that their policy will be to let the democrats have the right of way after they have made a suitable display of their opposition, and then let the bill go through to work out its consequences.

The desire of the leaders of both parties is that the bill should go into operation early enough for its effect on the country to be felt and appreciated before the next congressional election. MUST NOT GO TO PROTEST.

Carlisle Said He Would Pay Obligations as Long as There Was a Dollar.

WASHINGTON, Feb 10-Ever since Sec Carlisle appeared before the house judi ciary committee in explanation of the rea sons for the issue of new bonds there has been more or less discussion among the law yers of the house as to the legal strength of the secretary's position. Owing to the fact that the statement was made in the privacy of the committee room, and an exact transcript of the secretary's utterances was not accessible to the

made in the privacy of the committee room, and an exact transcript of the secretary's utterances was not accessible to the press, this discussion has naturally been conducted on the basis of the newspaper reports of the hearing, which were in some instances called in question by certain overcautious congressmen.

But after a good deal of delay the stenographic report of this hearing has been printed, and today copies were laid before the committee.

They bear out fully the statement of the secretary's position as given at the time of the hearing.

The single purpose of the judiciary committee acting under the Bailey resolution was to ascertain if the secretary held that he had authority to use the proceeds of the bond sale for other than redemption purposes, although the inquiry was broadened to take in the seigniorage question and the expediency of bond issues.

Touching the first proposition, the secretary assumed an unequivocal position, as witness the following transcription from the reporter's notes:

"I believe," said Sec Carlisle, "it is my duty to pay pensions and all other public obligations, and unless congress stops me I shall do so; while I stay there I shall endeavor to maintain the credit of the government by paying its obligations."

Mr Boanner—Out of the proceeds of the bonds which you now propose to sell?

Sec Carlisle—I would not use the proceeds of bonds if it was possible to avoid it, but I would not let the obligations of the government go to protest and fail to pay appropriations made by congress for legitimate purposes and for carrying on the expenses of the government as long as there is a dollar in the treasury.

The secretary, it is shown by further statements, apprehends trouble in the near future, unless congress authorizes him to issue a new loan, which could be more advantageously placed than the cumbersome 5 percent 10 year bonds, which necessitated a perplexing calculation as to interest that might really deter would-be investors from touching the bonds unless they were financial Hill's Friends Think Hoar Will Vote With Them Against Peckham. WASHINGTON, Feb 10 - The Peckham case is expected to be decided next Monday. Mr Hill and his friends talk very confidently of defeating the nomination. They count upon an adverse report from the judiciary committee, and believe that the senate will not reverse the action of he committee.

It is said tonight that Senator Hoar will ote against the nomination. vote against the homination.

Mr Hoar's position has been in doubt, and a day or two ago he stated that he had not made up his mind how he should vote.

The anti-administration men now claim his support, but it cannot be learned that Mr Hoar has publicly declared himself.

. REPORT ON COTTON. Producers Have Been Forced to Part

With 92.2 Percent of Crop. WASHINGTON, Feb 9-The returns to the department of Agriculture for the month of February-which relate to cotton-give the estimates of product compared with last year, the proportion sent to market, damages by insects, average date on which picking was closed, etc.

The following are the state averages of comparative crop: Virginia 94, North Carolina 94, South Carolina 92, Georgia 93, Florida 106, Alabama 96, Mississippi 104, Louisiana 90, Texas 85, Arkansas 94, Tennessee 84. Missouri 81. Tennessee 84. Missouri 81.

The general average or average for the country is 92.1.

The proportion of the crop which has been sent from the plantation, and is therefore in the hands of others than producers, as shown by the consolidated returns of correspondents, is 92.2 percent, leaving 7.8 percent of the crop still unmarketed.

BELIEVED TO BE INSANE. Lieut Fillette Will be Examined by Medical Board.

WASHINGTON, Feb 10-Sec Herbert today disposed of the court of inquiry proceed ings in the case of Lieut T. Glover Fillette, US marine corps, in a rather odd way. The court was appointed to inquire into the conduct of Lieut Fillette, who overstayed his leave during a recent absence, and it is understood that the court recommended his trial by court martial. Secretary Herbert, however, was given information that led him to doubt the offi-cer's sanity, and today he appointed a poard of medical officers to examine him

Next Week will See Them Named, 'Tis Said, as Collector and Appraiser. WASHINGTON, Feb 10-Sec Carlisle and Asst Sec Hamlin, both of whom are mempers of the lighthouse board, left this morn ng on a government vessel to inspect the lighthouses and stations of the lower Potomac and incidentally to get a little much needed recreation. They will stop for a day or so at Fortress Monroe, Mrs Carlisle and Miss Hamlin accompanying them.

In the absence of the secretary and Mr Hamlin it is not likely any action will be taken on Appraiser Dodge's case, but on their return it is expected that either Mr Dodge will have resigned or else he will be

It is the general belief here that next week the names of both the new collector and the new appraiser will be made public.

It is still impossible to obtain any official information as to the successor of Collector Beard, but it is rumored that the choice has finally settled upon Mr-Winslow Warren, and that he will be nomin-ted.

As previously Mr A. B. Stearns is regarded as certain to be made appraiser.

It is assumed, of course, that annexation will be long delayed. In that eyent, the provisional form will have to be dismissed, it is a temporary makeshift, which only two nations in the world have recognized and which is satisfactory to none.

Inevitably a change must come about, and that within a year.

Your correspondent talked with Pres Dole about it today. He is in all things a statesman of the best type, honest, brave, sagacious spotless, patriotic, discreet and thoroughly informed as to the condition with which it is his duty to grapple.

"It is a magnificent opportunity we have to take advance steps but we must take them with deliberation."

It is proper to say that many of the published stories about the mental ill-health of Pres Dole are the results either of misinformation or of malice.

By overwork, and because of a great strain of anxiety, the president began to feel a species of brain fag, which, while it did not dim his intellectual processes, made it advisable that he unburden himself of too much detail work which fell to him in his double capacity of president and minister of foreign affairs.

To this end a bill has been introduced separating the two offices. It will pass, and with tigo a salary for the president of $10,000 a year.

Once relieved of the labors of the foreign office Mr Dole will regain his energy.

The next minister of foreign affairs is likely to be ex Vice Pres Francis M. Hatch, a young lawyer who came here some years ago from New Hampshire, and now has the largest practice in the islands.

Should he decline to serve ex Atty Gen William Nevens Armstrong, who accompanied Kalakaua around the world and figured largely in Hawaiian politics up ito 1882, is likely to have the post.
